The Democrats of Fountain County will meet at the Court House in COVINGTON, on the Second Saturday, 11th DAY OF AUGUST. For the purpose of nominating a candidate for Auditor, also a candidate for County Commissioner. Turn out, Democrats. With a thorough organization the 10th LEAST will gain her colors.

Grand Mass Meeting DEMOCRACY.

The Democracy of Montgomery and surrounding counties in the District, will assemble in Mass Meeting at Crawfordsville, on Saturday, the 21st of July. Invitations have been sent to Stephen A. Douglas, Jesse D. Light, and A. P. Ward, who are confident, respected with other distinguished speakers, is hoped that there will be a general turnout of the National men of all parties.

THE TYPICAN COURT.

The Typicane Court adjourned on the 10th, after a session of fourteen weeks, probably the longest session ever held in our State. We understand that the docket is not clear yet.

NEW YORK AND ERIE RAILROAD.—By this lengthily and admirably constructed railway, passengers are taken to New York and the East, in the safest and speediest manner. It is the fastest route, making the time in forty-five minutes less than any other road.

A correspondent of the Louisville Courier, giving an account of the Fusion K. Convention in this city, says:

The fact that a large specimen of the negro occupied a prominent position along the side of the President of the Convention was at least an ominous, if not an ominous indication of the complexion of the meeting.

NEW MUSIC.—We have received from Messrs. WILLARD, STOWELL & WILLARD several pieces of new and exceedingly sweet music. "Yes, Let Me like a Soldier Die," "I would I was with thee," and "Willie Dear," are truly charming. Those who would procure all the latest and best sheet music should call upon Messrs. W. S. & W., who constantly keep the latest musical publications.

The Auditor of Knox County, Indiana, is required to give bond in the sum of two thousand dollars, for the faithful discharge of the duties of his office. The Vincennes Gazette says the school fund alone of that county is now, is thirty thousand dollars. That is, that county should be careful to elect a honest man for Auditor, at least until the amount of his bond equals the sum of money at one time in his hands.

AN IMPORTANT LAND QUESTION DECIDED.—It has been decided at the General Land Office, that, under the 5th section of the bounty land act of March 3d, 1855, land warrants issued under that act can be located on any of the public lands, which are subject to entry at private sale at either the minimum or low graduated prices at the time such warrant or warrants may be presented for location. Lands directed to be sold for the benefit of Indians are not so locatable.

DEATH BY SWALLOWING LARD.—Yesterday evening at 5 o'clock, Mrs. SIMON BORTWELL, an estimable lady, died in Jeffersonville from the effect of an ounce of lardum that it was supposed she had taken in the morning. She had been unwell, had various medicines around her table, including a phial of lardum, and about 4 o'clock in the morning she took the fatal dose. Every effort was made to restore her, but she remained in lethargy the whole time, not even conscious of a moment from the first to the last.

"Democracy," says a New York correspondent, "is on the fence clapping its wings and crying loudly. Sam glides into it, cautiously, infusing vigor and hope into its followers. The opinions in the political market are that 'Live Oak George' is growing up; the cry of 'Fill-more' is likely to be heard now that the Maine Law is in operation; that the prospects of Seward are dark; and that Pierce cannot be run through. We are indulging in very pleasant anticipations of shooting each other in the streets next week."

CRITIC OF ABOLITIONISM.—A Correspondent of the New York News, writing from Ohio Falls, Warren County, New York, under date of the 6th inst., states that, during the celebration on the day previous, one George Rugg, reader of that immortal document which he had the audacity to condemn, and remarked that he was ashamed to read the Declaration of Independence because it declared slavery! At this stage of these disingenuous proceedings Dr. A. W. Holden moved that the sentiments of the Declaration of Independence be declared by the people of the meeting, which, of course, was carried. This is the kind of spirit our people are called upon to exhibit to sustain by the nomination of Chase.—On Eng.

And the people of Indiana, who endorse the Abolition Convention held in this city on the 12th, sustain the same spirit. Is Indiana willing to have her conscience tarnished by such a foul blot? We answer most emphatically, no! Not while the good old liberty-loving and Union-preserving Democratic party continues to exist.

New York Provision Market. New York, July 18, 1855. Messrs. Seymour: Believing that a careful and reliable record of our produce market may be of material service, we beg leave to submit to you the following figures, but quote less than the market rates, with an obviously intended desire on the part of holders of produce to secure a fair and equitable price for their goods during the week.

FRUIT AND VEGETABLES FOR INDIANAPOLIS. Louisville has become a great market for the supply of early fruit and vegetables to the different cities of the West. Were our railroad facilities extended, this description of traffic could be extended almost indefinitely, and become a source of profit not only to the dealers but the avenues of communication.

Indeed, the Courier wrongs a large majority of our people in supposing that they do not "see the importance of preserving the Union." They do see its importance and will act accordingly. It is no evidence of defection to the Union on the part of our citizens, because our city is selected as the place from whence to proclaim Abolition. Know-Nothing and reasonable opinions and resolutions—because it is selected as the place for holding meetings, the every tendency of which is to dissolve the Union—for it will be borne in mind that these meetings are participated in by fanatics from every section of the State.

There is no more loyal or Union-loving people in this good country of ours, than the Democracy of the Hoosier Capital. They despise and repudiate the treasonable and dangerous teachings of their Abolition and Know-Nothing enemies and opponents. And for the Union they remain the most steadfast among the faithful. It is equally a source of regret to them, as it is to the Courier, that Indianapolis does contain some people who would gladly see the Union dissolved if they could thereby gain that official place and power to which they aspire, and for which they now make war upon the Democratic party.

BATES HOUSE, INDIANAPOLIS.—Our sister city at the other end of Mr. Zulauf's one hundred and eighty miles of level railway iron, where the Hoosier makes their law and keep their Governor and Legislature, is blessed with an abundance of hotels. To the quality of but one, however, can we testify. That is the Bates House, and we can speak of it without any mental reservation. It is a very large and imposing structure of first-class architecture, and centrally located. Attractive as is its exterior, one finds within more substantial reasons for being pleased. The hotel is really well kept. All possible provision is made for the comfort of the guests. The rooms are well supplied and well attended. The fare at meals is excellent, and a feature of the dining-room likely to captivate susceptible young men, is that the tables are served by young women, neatly dressed and modestly personified. Perhaps this is a good dodge of the landlord, who thereby saves food, as the prettiness of his maids is sure to attract the attention and distract the appetite of his guests.

We judge that Mr. Sloan, the landlord, was made for an inn-keeper. He is a perfect Sir John Falstaff in dimensions, and jolly all over. In the management of his hotel he exercises all possible care, so as to render it a home for the traveling public.—Louisville Courier.

Right, CHARLEY. Our Capt. SLOAN was "fitted by nature" for such a house as the Bates, where he does the honors like a Lord. As to insinuation about the girls, however, we demur. The idea of the Courier is erroneous. They are not so "all-fired" handsome, only about an average of the feminine institution in Hoosierdom.

The Convention of the 13th. We attended the Convention at Indianapolis on last Friday, more as a matter of curiosity than because we felt much interest in its deliberations and action. The convention was large and respectable, and we are free to confess that the platform of principles it adopted is much more liberal and tolerant towards all the elements in opposition than we expected. Some of the prominent men who acted in the Convention, openly boasted that they knew the Know Nothings were "thrown off" and not allowed any influence in the proceedings. Of course that is all nonsense, inasmuch as the king of Yankee Know Nothings, Wilson of Massachusetts, was imported all the way from Boston to make the principal speech for the occasion, instructing the benighted Hoosiers as to their future political duties.

Many other speeches were made, some by persons we suppose to be Know Nothings, and some by persons we suppose are not, without exception, tending strongly towards abolitionism. The speech of Mr. Wilson was especially so tintured, and was received by the convention with a higher degree of favor than that of any other gentleman who spoke on the occasion.

The following is the platform of principles which was adopted with very general unanimity by the convention, and as we remarked above is much more liberal than we had expected it would be, especially that portion which relates to our naturalization laws.—That resolution would seem to go to establish the fact that the K. N. had been thrown overboard by the convention; but when we saw so many of them there taking an active part in the proceedings, we were rather forced to the conclusion from the moderation of their resolves, that instead of knowing nothing, they are at last beginning to know something. Where now is their great hobby of 21 years, which had come to be the cardinal principle in their organization.—Lafayette Express.
